Club And Society Budgets Are Due By 5 p.m. Today

All clubs and societies which have in the past received money from the A.S.U.S. must have their budgets for the 1958-59 school year in the tuck shop of the Union by 5 pm today.

Any group whose budget is not ready at that time will not receive the funds they require.

booth to display literature, posters, and exhibits. Members of the executives will be on hand to discuss membership with interested students and to answer any questions.

The university's national, religious, scientific, cultural, and political groups will be represented.

SOME EXAMPLES

Some of the booths will be as follows:

The Canadian - European Society will have posters and pamphlets telling about their society for those who are interested..

At the Red and White Revue booth, this year's producer, Jon Anderson, and members of the personnel staff will meet those interested in either the technical or the on — stage work for this production.

A display which takes place in the lounge, will be given by the Amateur Radio Club. Antique

Benefactor Has Many Financial, Other Interests

— Dr. F. Cyril James announced on Monday that $4½ million had been donated to the university by John Wilson McConnell.

McConnell, who is a leading figure in Canadian finance, publishing and industry was born on July 1, 1877 in Muskoka, Ontario.

After finishing his education he went to Toronto and there began his career. After a short period he left for Montreal and entered finance here. In June, 1914, he became manager of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refineries Ltd. He was chairman of the Victory Loans Organization in 1917 and 1918. He

Probe Ordered Into Accounts

Agenda Overhaul Discussed At NFCUS Convention

OTTAWA, OCT. 7 — (Special to the Daily) — Several important issues made their debut in committee this afternoon as NFCUS rounded out its fourth day of discussion.

Perhaps the most important of these dealt with accounts kept by the Federation. A resolution introduced by one of the McGill delegates called for a committee of six Student Society presidents to be set up for the purpose of looking into finances of the central administration. This came as the result of dissatisfaction expressed by many delegates as to the amount and vagueness of information being released on the subject. The motion was passed, the newly-formed committee being allowed one day for their examination.

AGENDA CRITICIZED

Also under fire during the proceedings was the agenda. It was felt that a disproportionate amount of time had been spent debating the acceptance of last year's resolutions, time which might be better spent looking into more important and controversial issues such as bursaries, scholarships and federal aid to universities. Thus a motion was introduced calling for the inauguration of a Resolutions Committee which could review the issues beforehand, presenting them to the National Congress in a single block. Opportunity would be given for the delegates to veto any component resolution thought to be unsuitable. This possible innovation will be put to a vote at Thursday's Plenary Session.

MORE DISCUSSION

Another issue which received some attention was the notion that there should be more time set aside for discussion among the Presidents of the Student Societies. The only period officially delegated for that purpose this year was two hours last Sunday evening.

This afternoon saw the conclusion of much of the work done in Commissions this past week. Their findings are to be reviewed at the Plenary Sessions on Thursday.

The Commissions adjourned here around 5 pm this afternoon, leaving by bus for Rideau Hall where the delegates will attend a reception given by His Excellency the Governor General.

Wilson Hall Men: University Dress Should Change

The men of Wilson Hall have started a movement which they hope will change the habits of every McGill student.

They propose to have willing undergraduates robed in black academic cloaks.

Approaching the Arts Building steps Monday morning, this reporter was confronted by four men cloaked in monastic drapes. Moving closer cautiously, we could hear one of them babbling about the condition of the student body at McGill. One announced boldly that they were out to make McGill "more like a university and less like a glorified high school." Someone asked how they proposed to accomplish this feat.

The robed ones nodded knowingly to each other and the spokesman of the group stepped forward. "We propose," he said, "to have every undergraduate, who is willing, robed in a black gown."

He went on to say that it was a "privilege for the undergraduates to wear these gowns" and that they should not abuse it. He confided to us of other universities, such as Trinity College of Toronto, Bishop's University, and Memorial in Newfoundland, where students claimed pride in wearing their black gowns.

According to the four men who started the movement, it has been very successful so far. Apparently 50 people to date have decided to wear the gowns.

Medical Education Changes Will Be Outlined Tonight

Dr. Lloyd Stevenson, dean of the McGill Faculty of Medicine, will deliver the 21st annual Louis Gross Memorial Lecture at 8:30 p.m. tonight.

His subject, "The Changing Scene in Medical Education", will include such topics as the finance of medical education, and post-graduate work.

This year Dr. Stevenson has started a new program for fourth year medicine. There will be no written examinations. Students will be tested on only oral exams — medical and clinical. He decided on this change after several years of study, aided by the grant from the Commonwealth Fund. If this experiment is successful, it will go into permanent effect next year.

The lecture, which commemorates Louis Gross, an eminent pathologist and graduate of McGill who was killed in a plane crash, will take place in the auditorium of the Nurses' Home in the Jewish General Hospital.

This Morning's Headlines

News of National and World Significance

CASTEL CANDOLFO, ITALY — Oct. 7 — The condition of Pope Pius worsened tonight. He is still afflicted with a partial paralysis that affected his upper body, face and speech.

UNITED NATIONS. - N.Y. — Oct. 7. — The Soviet Union declared today that a lack of East - West agreement on stopping nuclear tests will force it to continue nuclear explosions.

NICOSIA — Oct. 7. — Two British soldiers and one Turkish Cypriot were killed and seven soldiers were wounded today in Cyprus.

WASHINGTON — Oct. 7 — Dulles asked the Chinese Communists to make permanent their temporary Formosa Strait cease-fire.

Gownian Movement

Disturbed by the shoddy sartorial appearance of the McGill campus, a group of Wilson Hall students has made a move toward the establishment of a higher level of student dress. By outfitting the entire student body in academic gowns, they apparently feel that a sense of dignity, good taste, and respect for university life can be instilled.

The possibilities are limitless. One has visions of bands of students, black-robed and majestic, sweeping grandly across Sherbrooke Street against the traffic.

If the Pinkerton gendarmes continue to obstruct the passage of beer into football games, the robes may prove to be the only means by which beer can still be smuggled into the stadium by the case. "Through tatter'd clothes", as Lear puts it, "small vices do appear; robes and furred gowns hide all".

The system of lining colours which would be needed to designate faculty, year, and so on, would doubtless be entertaining. One can see Divinity clothed in immaculate white, for purity; Commerce in mercenary silver; Engineering in red for raising the devil.

Perhaps each faculty would feel prompted to design a coat of arms. Heralds for all public functions... Gothic type for the Daily... wizardry and alchemy restored to their honoured place on the curriculum...

But we're indulging in fantasy.

Any concerted movement to resuscitate the wearing of gowns on this campus would be a backward, reactionary step. It would mean a conformity far more terrible than any imposed by passing fads like the Ivy League mania. It would mean a rigid uniformity, a type of Ivory Tower prison garb.

With all its shapelessness and individual poor taste, our present system of people wearing what they please is far more acceptable than one in which the students appeared as ponderous, identical, and solemn as a community of bats.

We're all for anything that tends to propagate a sense of respect towards the university. We approve wholeheartedly of a small group taking the trouble to do something about it. But gowns?... good grief!

Tonight's The Night

The Union lounge will become a giant sideshow this evening as almost every club and activity on campus will set up a booth in hopes of attracting new members. It's Activities Night — the clubs' and societies' night to holler, or rather exalt the advantages of their particular group.

All this is part of Freshmen Reception, and boy what a reception. You have your pick of joining any one or all of forty-seven clubs and other activities — anything from the Franklin Society to the Glider Club, or the MOC.

Activities are a part of college life just as much as lectures and the library. However, the absence of a number of previous years' "wheels" each fall prompts us to a gentle reminder that activities are not all there is to this place called McGill.

Activities should be chosen with the same care one uses in choosing courses; (i.e. no nine o'clock or Saturday lectures, etc.) It is important to know how much time the particular effort takes, and even more important to know what it can contribute to your education. That last word is not confined to lectures and professors, but each day of your four, five or eight years here should leave a lasting impression on you. The people you meet and the things you do form a part of the outlook you acquire.

Consider each booth in the lounge with care and don't be swayed by the noise and the crowds. One interesting sidelight of previous years will be missing. The MOC member who used to climb the side of the Union has been discouraged from his efforts by the Union management. Well, anyway, the food is better.

Spirited Protest

To The Editor;

As a recent immigrant from Toronto, I am appalled at the apparent lack of support McGill Students afford the Redmen. (For those of you who don't know, Redmen is the name of our football team).

Spirit is an unheard word at McGill with the exception of that form which comes in bottles and cans. (Of which, I might add, there is certainly no lack).

Where I come from there are two football trophies—one for the championship team, the other for the best school spirit. The latter often more prized than the former. To me, the cheerleaders made a truly heroic effort last Saturday, but to no avail. It must be frustrating to cheer like hell and get absolutely no response from the majority of the spectators.

If any should doubt the merits of school spirit I should like to tell you that it develops teamwork, loyalty, sportsmanship, steadfastness and many other personality traits desired in a healthy, well rounded character. Some complain of the Redmen's success but their success lies in our laps. A team must have support, among other things, and it may well mean the difference between winning and losing. I know, I've played on school teams. If no-one is counting on you why bother trying? I feel something should and must be done about this situation and it can only be remedied by you the students.

A disgusted Engineer.

Manipulation

To The Editor;

With great misgivings, we, in the Advertising Department of the Hot Spot Pop Company read your left-wing editorial published last Thursday concerning the "evils" of the advertising industry.

Few in this magnificently cultural land of ours realize how much advertising has accomplished. How many commercial jingles have become more popular than hit parade songs? Have not our scintillating billboards made the mundane countryside live with colour?

Still, there are those few critics who are not satisfied with the aesthetic accomplishments of advertising, who maintain that our methods are not subtle and even unethical. For those few, we at Hot Spot Pop are perfecting subliminal advertising, a paragon of subtlety. We plan to wire the sidewalks of this free thinking nation from the greatest cities to the smallest hamlet, and by means of electric impulses to imprint the name of Hot Spot Pop in the mind of each and every person in our great, big, sociable nation.

Campus Daze

"Shape of things To Come?"

We at Hot Spot Pop certainly do not wish to bring pressure to bear on editorial policies. However, we must bear in mind our responsibilities to the thousands of employees in the Hot Spot family from coast to coast. Our continued support of an anti-capitalistic, Communist front organization, such as is apparently your newspaper, would be in direct contradiction to the lofty ideals of this happy, pop-drinking, freedom-loving, land of ours. Unless an apology appears immediately, consider our advertising contract cancelled, as of now.

Regretfully Yours,

Liberals Elect Campus Chief

Brahm Campbell, a first year law student, was acclaimed president of the McGill Liberal Club for the 1958-59 season at the first general meeting of the club.

The election was necessitated by the resignation of Stan Hartt, presently studying in Europe.

The main topic of discussion at the meeting was the possible establishment of a reconstruction program that would maintain Liberalism on the campus.

also was a director of the Bank of Montreal and president of the Montreal Tramways Company.

In 1938 McConnell became publisher of the Montreal Daily Star. McConnell was noted not only as a business man, but also for the enormous amount of good that he has done for Canada. He has been called the "Prince of Philanthropists".

In 1914 he headed a private campaign which collected $7 million for McGill University. McConnell donated the Winter Stadium in 1954, and on January 4, 1958, he gave the University $1½ million for a long range building program. A McConnell Scholarship Fund has been founded.

In recognition of his outstanding service to the Dominion and the University, he was nominated Governor and member of the Executive Committee.

McConnell, now 82, is still considered by those who know him to be a very active man, both in sports and in his work.

Josh Wows 'Em

It's a long way from the bitter back bar-rooms of Negro urban America to the half-lit luxury of Cafe Society but Josh White, possessed of an incredible ear for the peculiarly aching quality of the blues guitar, a voice as finely controlled as a master's puppet, and the dominant personality of a successful fullback, has made it without losing too of the "human touch", and in his climb he has gained a great deal of polish. Mr. White now earns a good part of his daily bread in the watering-places of urban sophisticates but last night at Scope's Moysse Hall concert he royally entertained a standing-room only house of not-yet blasé students with a pot-pourri of poignant blues, easy joke songs, and thoughtful cynical satire that moved effortlessly to form an enjoyable evening out, and something more than that.

Mr. White began his career as a sensitive talented often unemployed singer of songs that protested because Negroes do not always receive fair treatment, especially in the American South, and because the poverty of the depression era inspired rebellion in the sensitive. His first important album was "Strange Fruit"

The strange fruit of which Mr. White sang was the body of a lynched Negro suspended from a Magnolia tree; when some members of the audience shouted requests for this song Mr. White chose instead to sing less loaded material. The transition from protest to less-protesting attitudes is perhaps a natural accompaniment of age and success, and Mr. White carries both of these well. He has become a chronicler of the love affair, a story-teller with the guitar, and mostly, a man who can entertain his fellows sincerely and well. It was a good night out, and when the blues and the guitar were together, there were memorable moments. Mr. White is the best in his business.

Red And White Seeks Talent

The Red and White Revue is recruiting personnel for this year's production.

For students who wish to register for acting, dancing, singing, or production, the Revue office in the Union basement will be open from 12 to 2 pm on weekdays.

The Revue will also sponsor a booth at the Activities exhibition tonight where the producer and his staff will meet interested students.

FRESHMEN TRAINING

The first in a series of training lectures will be held in the Union at 8 pm tomorrow. All freshmen trying out for a position on the Daily are required to attend.

Panel Discuss French Crises

A panel discussion sponsored by the McGill Socialist Society will take place today at 1 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

Professor Michel Euvard and Maurice Ratobin of the Department of French and Professor S.J. Frankel of the Department of Political Science will participate in a debate on "De Gaulle and the Future of France."

Among the controversial topics to be discussed are the questions as to whether De Gaulle can solve the Algerian crisis, why he obtained a strong vote of confidence, and the importance of the army.

Ugh! 'Twas In Vain Indians Lose Again

The run of ill fortune that made its advent with the McGill Indians in the initial league contest remained to plague "the little red team", as the McGillians dropped a 6-0 decision to the Lakeshore Redskins at Point St. Charles last night.

The Warparty defence played the customary devastating game, putting their weapons to good use. Their arrows comprised an impenetrable pass defence, their clubs, a charging line, and their tomahawks, a fiery determination.

No score was recorded in the first quarter, which saw the Indians foil the Lakeshore offense twice on third down bids.

The second frame saw little action, and the only recorded event of interest occurred when McGill halted the Redskins three yards from paydirt.

In the third chukker, an Inter punt receiver dropped a third down punt in the end zone, and the ball bounced into the hands of Lakeshore's Bill Tracy, for the major. The convert was missed, and the count stood at 6-0.

At the 10 minute mark of the fourth quarter, the Injuns' Brian Byrne cracked in over center and blocked a Redskin punt. McGill took possession on the rival 33 yard line, and Quarterback Ian Henderson engineered the Indians' one distinct drive of the game, but a timely interception placed a damper on the Warparty assault. The offensive platoon just could not realize its full potentiality throughout the entire course of the contest.

LINE LUMINARY

"Geronimo" Glen Edwards repeatedly burst through the Lakeshore defence, from his corner linebacker spot, and did so with such ferocity that it seemed only the acquisition of a few Redskin scalps would serve to appease his anger. He nailed the opposing Quarterback behind the line of scrimmage on five separate occasions, throwing Lakeshore for losses amounting to fifty yards.

The Indians were unable to coordinate the timing of their plays in the backfield; consequently, they were held to a meagre 46 yards rushing and 4 first downs. Q.B. Ian Henderson tried 7 passes, completed 2 for 30 yards, and had 2 intercepted. The Skins amassed a total of 100 yards along the ground, and pounded out 10 first downs. They threw 8 passes, 3 of which were successful, and lost the pigskin twice to alert McGill defensive backs.

Women's Sports

The Competitive Sports Committee composed of a chairman, secretary, advisor, and managers of all competitive sports is responsible for the delegation of intercollegiate tournaments. In order that this committee carry on its duties efficiently a system was devised to enable any capable girl on campus to apply for a position on this committee. Presently, there are several openings on the committee. Managers for fencing, volleyball, ice hockey, skiing, archery, and basketball are needed to round out the council. If you have any experience in the above sports and would like to gain experience in organizing events, please put in an application to the Physical Education Office in RVC before Friday, October 10 containing the following information:

MOC

The McGill Outing Club has planned a Thanksgivings Weekend for all members. There will be a three day excursion to Shawbridge where there will be square-dancing in the streets, and hiking on the highest mountain peaks. Home cooked chicken bar-b-q will be served at mealtimes. Tomorrow is the deadline for signing up at the Union for "the weekend".

- 1) Name:
- 2) Faculty and year; 3) sport desired to manage; 4) past experience; 5) reason for application; 6) address and phone number.

The W.A.A. would like to see as many applications as possible. Applicants who are not chosen this year can gain experience in helping the manager in arranging the meets, publicizing the event and above all share in encouraging girls to participate in that sport.

Tomorrow the Women's Basketball Season will begin. There will be an intramural practice at 8 pm, to which everyone is welcome to attend. Bring running shoes, red regulation shorts and white blouses. At the Intramural level fraternities, faculties and residences will compete on Monday and Thursday 5-6 pm. For keen basketball players there will be competition with outside teams on two levels-intercity and intercollegiate.

Inter-city team members will play in the Women's Open Basketball League, which is divided in two sections, Senior and Junior. There will be entries representing the "Red and White" in both sections. Macdonald College, Sir George Williams and the "Y" are members of this league. To climax the season an Intercollegiate team is chosen to compete in the Intercollegiate Tournament at Western for the "Bronze Baby".
